As a follow-up to my post of several months ago about the ultimate boat anchor, "The Interociter" from the classic 1955 SF film, "This Island Earth", I want to bring to everyone's attention that you can see this film get that special Mystery Science Theater 3000 treatment starting this weekend at your friendly local neighborhood cineplex (gee, whatever happened to real movie theaters?). The reviews I've read so far all suggest that you'll be laughing through the entire picture. 73, Mike

My apologies to the boatanchor and glowbug list members. Last night I posted a message that bounced. When I reposted it, I didn't realize that all the header-trailer garbage would tag along for the ride, so, sorry for the bandwidth. In case you didn't see it amid the noise, here's the original message.

Subject: 4th Edition Radiotron Designer's Handbook Available on CD-ROM

In addition to the AES reprint, A new CD-ROM version of the complete 4th Edition is available from The Old Colony Sound Lab, PO Box 243, Peterborough, NH 03458-0243, Tel 603-924-6371. I believe this company is affiliated with Audio Amateur Publications who publish "Glass Audio" magazine, which is where I saw the CD-ROM advertised.

The ad claims that the text is fully hyperlinked and includes a 50 page index. The cost for this CD-ROM is $69.95 + $3.95 S&H. I haven't actually played with it as I own a (very used) copy of the original book. 73, Mike
